

If I get my cat vaccinated, isn't there a chance that it will catch the virus from the vaccine?

Written by iLabs

Monday, 17 November 2008 08:49 -

No. As of July 1992, all of the vaccines which are approved for sale in the United States are incapable of causing a positive FeLV test result. (Sorry, but I don't have figures for vaccines in other countries. If anyone does, feel free to append them onto this FAQ.)